ECONOMY IN COAL
Fuchien Lump Coal stands for economy in fuel value. All lump coals have a large percentage of dust which are practically waste. The dust in FUCHIEN Lump burns into lamps as well as they are used in boilers. Fuchien Lump coal burns gradually and is therefore a decided economy.

MARK'S COSTLY FALL.
HUGE GERMAN BUDGET HOLE.
OCCUPATION EXPENSES.
(Reuter's Service to the China Mail.)

BERLIN, April 24.
As a result of the great depreciation in the mark, the 1923 budget for the execution of the peace treaty must be entirely redrafted and the amounts to be paid in foreign currency calculated on the basis of one dollar to 20,000 marks.

The ordinary budget expenditure has risen from 84.5 milliard to 1.4 million millions; and the expenditure from 121.9 to 808.7 milliard marks.

The total expenditure of 2.2 million millions marks does not include reparations payments which have not yet been estimated for 1923. For example for the Inter-Allied Rhineland Commission 38 milliard marks must be added, and for the maintenance of the occupation troops, etc. 228.3 milliard marks.

The estimate for buildings for occupying troops has been raised from 10.3 to 308.4 milliard marks whilst the accommodation of the Inter-Allied Control Commission now costs 4.4 milliard instead of 147 million marks.

SOCIALISTS URGE OVERTURES.

BERLIN, April 24.
The former Chancellor, Herr von Mueller, one of the Socialist leaders, in a speech at a Socialist meeting, emphasised the necessity of offering a definite sum in connection with the new German proposal to the Entente. He suggested 31 milliard gold marks, of which 26 milliard should be for France and between 4 and 5 milliard for Belgium.

As regards the question of security Herr von Mueller suggested a peace pact between all the states belonging to the Rhine Shipping Commission, and the German Government should undertake not to declare war against any power for at least a generation or a century. Herr von Mueller declared that the German Socialists had agreed with the Socialists of Allied countries regarding this matter. The German Socialists were ready to support the Cuno Government if it did what was necessary and were ready to take the consequences if the Government refused to do so.

WORLD AMITY.

INTERNATIONAL COURT VINDICATED.

HARDING'S DEFENCE.

NEW YORK, April 24.
President Harding, in a speech at the annual luncheon given by the Associated Press of America, defended the decision of the United States to participate in the court of international justice as in harmony with platform pledges, candor and promises, and American aspirations. He denied that it would be entry into the League of Nations. The Administration had definitely put aside all thought of entering the League.

Referring to the argument that the United States would be placed at a disadvantage in the election of judges for the court through the disparity of national voting power in the League Assembly, Mr. Harding said that if the great powers could accept without fear of the voting strength of the British Dominions, Americans ought in view of their English-speaking kinship, to feel themselves free from danger. He commended the court as a great step towards the peaceful settlement of justiciable questions.

BOXER INDEMNITY SCHEMES.

CHINESE MUST BE CONSULTED.

LONDON, April 24.
Dr. Hart, principal of the Anglo-Chinese College at Tientsin, addressing the China Society, said the allocation of the British portion of the Boxer Indemnity afforded a unique opportunity for giving assistance which would bind Britain and China in real friendship and benefit the whole world. The Chinese however, must be consulted before the final form which such assistance should take was settled, and they should be represented in all educational schemes.

BRITAIN'S OIL BORINGS.

LONDON, April 24.
In the House of Commons, in answer to questions, Mr. Lane Fox, Under Secretary for Mines, said only two out of the eleven State borings in the United Kingdom was oil found in any appreciable quantities. Both these wells had now been disposed of.

MACAO NOT BEING SOLD.

LISBON, April 24.
The rumour relative to the sale of Macao to Germany is denied.

TIKHON'S TRIAL.

HELSINGFORS, April 23.
The trial of the Patriarch Tikhon has been postponed.

MARKS DOWN AGAIN.

LONDON, April 24.
Marks have relapsed to 149,000, 145,000.

PRE-WAR CHINA DEBTS.
GERMAN AND BRITISH NATIONALS.
AGREEMENT CONCLUDED.
(Reuter's Service to the China Mail.)

BERLIN, April 24.
An agreement concluded between the British and German Governments provides for certain pre-war debts by German nationals to British nationals being recognised by a competent court which shall be covered from the proceeds in the hands of the British custodian of enemy property in China resulting from the liquidation of German property. These debts are:—(1) Debts of German residents in China or the branches of German business houses in China at the time the debt was contracted to British subjects, no matter where the latter were resident;—(2) Debts of German nationals, no matter where resident, to British subjects or branches of British business houses resident or existing in China at the time the debt was contracted. Debts under Article 296 of the Versailles Treaty are excluded.

MATTER OF URGENCY.

RECENT FIJI INCIDENT.

LONDON, April 24.
In the House of Commons, Capt. R. Berkeley (Conservative), with regard to the Fiji incident asked for an assurance that future unconstitutional acts of this kind would not be taken, and that before pledges were given individuals of the legislature of the Colony would be consulted.

Mr. W. G. A. Gore, Under-Secretary for Colonies, explained that it was clearly a matter of urgency. If an emergency arose in the future, the adoption of emergency measures might be necessary, but naturally constitutional procedure would be followed on all possible occasions.

(A Suva (Fiji) cable dated April 13 stated: A legislative deadlock has arisen owing to the Imperial Government's promise to refund $58,000 export duties to the Colonial Sugar Refining Company without consulting the Fiji legislative authorities. The elected members of the Council have refused to sit until the Duke of Devonshire has undertaken that there will be no repetition of the Imperial Government's "unconstitutional action." The Company has since agreed to forego the refund, has promised a bonus on cane sugar of 42 pence per ton, and has agreed to increase wages by three pence a day, providing the export duties are removed.)

CASH BASIS ONLY.

TRADE WITH RUSSIA.

LONDON, April 24.
In the House of Commons, in answer to questions, Sir Philip Lloyd-Greame, President of the Board of Trade, stated that £4,986,000 worth of goods had been imported from Russia, and £1,338,000 exported to Russia during the quarter ended December 31, 1922.

Asked whether the figures could not have been increased if there had been better Anglo-Russian relations, Sir Philip Lloyd-Greame said that as long as the Russian Government refused to establish conditions in which credit could be given, trade could only be done on a cash basis.

MISS ELLIS SAFE AND WELL.

BORDER CAPTIVE'S RETURN.

LONDON, April 24.
The India Office announces that the Chief Commissioner of the North West Frontier Province met Miss Ellis and Mrs. Starr near the Orakzai border. All are well and the whole party is expected at Peshawar to-day.

(Miss Ellis, 15 years old, was kidnapped by Afghani raiders who murdered her mother, wife of the district staff officer. Mrs. Starr, a doctor, went to Miss Ellis' aid.)

RUSSIA'S OIL EXPORT.

SHELL GROUP'S COUP.

LONDON, April 24.
The Agence Economique et Financiere reports that the Royal Dutch-Shell Group has purchased 200,000 tons of oil from the Russian soviets and has offered to allow its colleagues in the international consortium to participate in the deal which assures the Shell Company a monopoly in the export of Russian oil for over a year.

BANQUE INDUSTRIELLE AFFAIR.

PROCEEDINGS AGAINST MANAGEMENT.

PARIS, April 24.
It is reported that it has been decided to commence legal proceedings against ten persons formerly concerned in the management of the Banque Industrielle de Chine.

FREIGHT RATE DOWN.

COLOMBO, April 24.
The rate for freight from Colombo to Australia has been reduced by ten rupees a ton.

ODDS AND ENDS.MAINLY SCISSORS LOOT.*The Buttonhole.

Shall we return again to the fashion of wearing a bunch of flowers pinned to our frocks? asks a writer in the Pall Mall Gazette. If future events do cast their shadow before us, it really looks as if we shall, for at a big dress show recently most of the tailored suits worn by the mannequins had a charming little coloured ivory flower stuck in the buttonhole. These looked quite enchanting, and it is not a far cry from an ivory flower to a posy of fresh blossoms.

The Wandering Irishman.

The true Irishman of culture has no home; he is equipped for the road. His unrivalled books, made for travel, are always fitted into satchels little less lovely than the masterpieces they hold. His harp is to be slung over the shoulder.
His bell has its case. His reliquary could be held in the other hand.
Everything is hand-size, for everything must conform to the supreme need of his being—mobility.

Signs of Middle Age.

Now what we wish to impress on women is the fact that it is really the neck that makes women look old, not the face, and that every neck can be improved, except in cases of extreme old age or disease.
If young women commenced the neck exercises the very first time they noticed the little hollow or puff under their chin, they could correct the defect and preserve their youthful lines indefinitely.
Muscles that are exercised retain their elasticity and firmness, but from lack of exercise they become soft and flabby. You can readily see that a moderate amount of exercise is necessary for the preservation of contour, as well as for the clear, healthy-looking skin which is the result of good circulation.—Nora Mullane, in Health and Beauty Section, *March
Good Housekeeping*.

Are Women Potters?

"Meanwhile, the weight of influence, public and private, continues to urge women to fill their days with practice of what are called the Domestic Arts, says Eliza Robins in Good Housekeeping. The silly plural tells not only of ignorance of the field: it strikes a blow at a power so indispensable to excellence as concentration.
No man is expected to practise Arts. If he attempts more than one craft, he is jeered at—a jack-of-all-trades. But his must be restrained from perfecting herself in some one occupation, just as a graduate cut off an amateurism into professionalism. Whether this dreaded thing has happened,

whether she has graduated or not,
by every device of advertisement and suggestion the leisure of girl and woman is invaded by calls to what cannot so properly be called domestic arts as domestic potterings.

The McGrigor Failure.

In the bankruptcy of Sir James Roderick Duff McGrigor, Bt., and Edward Albert Biss, who carried on business as bankers and Army agents, at 39, Pantons-street, Hay-market, S.W., under the style of Sir Charles R. McGrigor, Baronet, and Company, a statement of the affairs of the firm has been filed in the Court of Bankruptcy. The statement shows liabilities £743,506, of which £739,058 are returned as expected to rank, and estimated net assets £227,170.
It is stated that there are 8,404 unsecured creditors, but it is understood that the amount showing as due to them
may be reduced by a possible claim against the Inland Revenue for refund of income-tax and excess profits duty. The chief assets are cash at bank £59,536, stocks and shares £50,400 good book debts £86,666, and bad £298,012, and doubtful ditto
£95,062, estimated to realise £24,888. The separate estate of the debtor, Sir J. R. D. McGrigor
Bt. discloses an estimated surplus in assets of £1,093, after payment of his liabilities amounting to £480.
That of Mr. E. A. Biss, now deceased, shows an estimated surplus in assets of £9,589, after payment of his liabilities returned at £31.

Searchlight to Sea Bottom.

By means of an invention now in use on the Tyne a ship is able to throw a disc of light on the sea bottom, and the captain, as he stands on the bridge or in the chartroom, can probe the depths with the penetrating vision of a fish. A pair of eyes to the bottom of the boat gauge with mathematical precision the depth of water immediately below the vessel.
This power of submarine vision enables the captain or navigating officer to avoid shallow waters and to steer clear of hidden sandbanks or rocks. The Tyne pilot-boat, the "Queen of the May," which can be seen off the coast in all-weather awaiting the summons of homeward bound vessels for pilotage up the Tyne, is fitted with such a pair of eyes, and the man who has performed the operation is Captain James Burn, a well-known pilot, of Julian Avenue, South Shields. He has equipped the pilot boat with this novel system of continuous depth finding which, he claims, removes the necessity of taking soundings by the use of the lead.
Far below the water-line, sometimes amidships, a vertical beam of light is projected through a sort of porthole on to the sea bottom, a searchlight being used for the purpose. Some distance from the porthole, also far below the waterline, is a little observation window from which the beam of light can be seen through the water. A mirror is used at the end of a long observation tube running vertically right through the ship to the navigating bridge. By working a handle the captain can take an angle on the projected beam, and then by a simple calculation can measure with accuracy the depth of water below the ship.—Daily News.

Cheer-to Tortoise.

Now that the idiotic game of
"beaver" is dead, a new trouble looms ahead. It is going to England from India. It is the game of "tortoise." The journal Outward Bound states that in India, where beaver was much too dangerous a game to be played owing to the unsportsmanlike attitude of the bearded Sikh, all the energy of the irresponsible is turned upon tortoise. A tortoise is anyone wearing tortoise-shell glasses. The highest marks have been awarded to a player who saw bride and bridegroom, both tortoises, emerging from the church. On the other hand, it is only fair to say that Americans do not count in this game. You score nothing—for marking an American tortoise.

Adventure.

Fettered I lay and ever dreaming
dully
That my poor body, ruled by circumstance,
Was lost to venture, till from that illusion
My mind awoke and by a happy chance,
Found it had wings, so, like a fledgling, tried them,
Shook out its pinions to a further flight,
Soaring beyond the earth-bound
fields of sorrow,
Sure in the knowledge of a newborn might.

Often I sank, too wearied to rise higher,
Yet ever ready to seek fresh the goal,
Undaunted then, I learnt life's greatest lesson—
That I could be the captain of my soul.
Oh, Great Adventure! I, who one was frightened
To stand alone, may touch the Morning Star.
For lo! the gift of gods is in my keeping,
Since in my flight I saw the Gates ajar.

MAIL WEEK NEWS.

ITEMS FROM FAR AND NEAR.

An expert architect has been called in to inspect the famous crooked spire of Chesterfield Church, which is expected to go overboard in any decent gale. Its back is broken and the peeling of bells is forbidden.

In consequence of the lack of favourable opinion of North Borneo rubber companies, North Borneo is unlikely to be represented at the Sixth International Rubber and Tropical Products Exhibition, to be held in Brussels in 1924.

The King was an interested spectator of the annual Rugby football match between the Royal Navy and the Army at Twickenham. The Senior Service won by 2 goals and 2 tries to a goal and 2 tries—16 points to 11.

On the ground, it is alleged, that both Carpenter and Siki have gone back on their word to fight, the revenge match for honour, and are now denouncing the cinema rights and training expenses, the contest is indefinitely postponed.

Drastic cuts are recommended in the Income-tax report, which was published in India. A total reduction of 194 crores of rupees is proposed. The principal reduction is in military expenditure, which amounts to 10½ crores of rupees.

Laying the foundation-stone of a "House of Velasquez" and a National Fine Art School in Madrid, King Alfonso declared: "I am not a deserter. I remain at my post, and will die there if necessary. A King of Spain can do no such thing as has been imputed to me." His Majesty was given a great ovation.

The conclusions drawn from statistics published in the year book of the Commonwealth of Australia are that British trade with Australia is nearly back to the pre-war level, that the Commonwealth population grows with alarming slowness, and that compulsory settlement of trade disputes does not work.

During the period from the Armistice to the end of last December the number of marriages contracted between members of the British Army of the Rhine and German women was approximately 400, states Lieut-Colonel Guinness, in Parliamentary Debates. He also mentions that the strength of the British Army on the Rhine on March 1 was 8,665 of all ranks.

Dr. Cook, who hoaxed the world over his reported discovery of the North Pole and also attracted attention in Calcutta by his attempt to obtain permission to climb Mount Everest which the Raj refused, has surrendered in Texas to answer a charge of using the mails to defraud the public in connection with the sale of oil shares in the Cookfield Petroleum Producers' Association.

Latest statistics show that the United States has the highest divorce rate of all the civilized nations.

One in eight of its marriages is dissolved by the courts. Last year 1,000,000 marriages were contracted throughout the country and the divorce court made 125,000 decrees. From these figures agitators for a reform of the marriage and divorce laws point out that 80,000 "divorce orphans" are created yearly in the United States, and that more than £11,000,000 is expended each year for the care of children born of parents who ought not to be allowed to marry.

One of the feats performed by the induction balance—an electrical instrument widely different from the chemical balance—has been to show that a coin undergoes loss even when a finger is rubbed over it. Coins likewise suffer much loss in weight by abrading each other's face when jangling in the pocket, and they are damaged each time a shopman rings them on his table to see whether they are genuine or not. An expert some years ago made a number of precise experiments, from which it was ascertained that £100 sterling worth of sovereigns lost £3 9s. 8d. of their value in a hundred years.

Ferdinand Nater, aged 52, a handsome and fashionably dressed man, has been sentenced at Zurich, states a Geneva wire of March 5, on a charge of obtaining money from 15 women under promises of marriage. Nater pleaded: "I have a loving heart, and am quite unable to resist women." Most of the victims are young widows. Three of the five who were present in court tearfully besought the judge to liberate Nater, the other two intimated that they would take action for breach of promise. Nater declared that the majority of the women themselves proposed marriage. He was sentenced to two years imprisonment and three years' loss of civic rights.

A Light Car for home leave

Business and professional men and others about to proceed home on leave are offered unusual facilities for acquiring a Light Car.

Autoveyors Ltd., London's leading Light Car Specialists, have made arrangements by which any car may be purchased on payment of a small deposit (from £27.10s.), the balance being paid by easy instalments. At the end of the leave period they will, if desired, take the car for resale on commission on specially advantageous terms.

Many who availed themselves of these facilities last year have written most appreciative letters, from which the following are typical extracts:
(1) "I thank you very much for your attention and courtesy. I shall have much pleasure in returning your car to you when I find it in as good condition as when I received it."
(2) "I was very helpful to me when I was in the car, and you could have secured for me a very good price indeed."
(3) "Should I find any of my friends in Australia in need of a good vehicle from the help of which I will not fail to give them your name and address."

The possession of a good Light Car will increase the enjoyment of your leave period, and the recent drastic price reductions bring it within the reach of most. Autoveyors Ltd. are Authorized Agents for the leading makes, and arrange all details with regard to taxation, license, insurance, etc.
Write to-day for catalogue and full particulars of special "leave" offer to:

LEEKES AND FLAGS.

EDINBURGH STUDENTS' FROLICS.

LLOYD GEORGE'S WELCOME.

Mr. Lloyd George received a boisterous welcome from the Edinburgh students when he delivered his Rectorial address in the M'Ewan Hall.

His carriage was hauled by the enthusiasts from S. Alfred Ewing's house in Moray Place, in which he had spent the night, to the West-End, and thence to the hall. The carriage was gaily adorned with flags and bunting, and leekes were prominently displayed.

One placed announced that in the vehicle was "David among the Philistines." It was shown on the front, while on the sides were placards which declared "We won't sink, though we've sprung a Leek" and that the ex-Premier was "David the Little Giant." On the box seat were two Welsh students in national costume.

The carriage was drawn by 40 bare-headed University blues, who wore their blazers. A public welcome greeted Mr. Lloyd George in Princes Street, but there was not much cheering.

The students who were fortunate in securing admission tickets were early seated in the M'Ewan Hall, where they kept the fun going fast and furious.

Meanwhile there were signs of boisterous spirits outside. Rotten eggs and fruit and bags of pea-meal were thrown.

A rush was made for the gallery door by those who had no tickets: It was resisted by the police, and then a fusillade broke out, the police being bombarded in student fashion. The alleged ringleader was arrested, and then another who protested, and seized a detective by the collar, was taken in charge.

Both were conveyed to the City Police Office, one being charged with throwing missiles and the other with attempting to rescue his friend. Later they were released.

GUARDS' OFFICER FINED.

DRUNK WHILE MOTORING.

At Marlborough-street James Fenwick of Sales la Terriere, 21, a Scots Guards officer, described as independent, of St. James-street Knightsbridge, S.W., was charged with being drunk in charge of a motor car and dangerous driving. He pleaded not guilty, and was defended by Sir Henry Curtis Bennett, K.C., and Mr. Walter Frampton.

Police evidence was that he drove up Regent-street at 11.15 p.m. on February 14 at 30-35 miles an hour, and after colliding with two taxicabs got out of his car and stood on a refuge, "laughing rather much," and arguing with the taxicab drivers. At the police station he laughed in a drunken manner. When put into a cell he went to sleep at once.
In the witness-box de Sales la Terriere denied that he was drunk. Colonel B. H. S. Romilly, his commanding officer, gave de Sales la Terriere a good character and said he had a "nervous laugh" and blushed and giggled when talking. Mr. Mead imposed a fine of £2 with £3 3s. costs and disqualified the defendant from holding a licence for one year in respect of the first offence and for the dangerous driving fined him 15s. Sir Henry Curtis Bennett gave notice of appeal.

CAN I WEAR IT AGAIN NEXT SEASON?

Of course you can, if you take proper precautions before storing but be sure the cloth has been thoroughly sterilized.

Think of the germs, dust, and other dangerous matter which garments gather when worn. Our hygienical

Dry-cleaning process will ensure your clothing being free from germs, which no other method can do.

"TRUTH, JUSTICE, PUBLIC SERVICE"

HONGKONG, WEDNESDAY, APRIL 25, 1923.

WHEELS WITHIN WHEELS.

Trivial things like 'voice, mannerism and dress have been known to decide the fate of men being tried for their lives. Jury men have even been known to discount evidence because the witness had been seen reading a certain sporting journal in court, and they would not (they have later avowed) 'believe a man on his oath who read a paper like that.' But remarkable though these examples of psychology are they find equally amazing parallels in the factors which often decide the fate of nations, of civilisations even. France has just provided a notable instance in the Ruhr invasion. With the country's huge budget deficit growing ever greater, her politicians found themselves in a truly awkward dilemma. Either they must secure the reparations money or they must increase taxation. The first course meant untold perils but the second promised certain defeat when the next election came round. Therefore they invaded Germany. And the history of Europe took a new turn. Thus the French peasant, concerned only with his own pocket, decides the fate of a whole world. Likewise the American Middle West farmer, dominating Congress, retards economic recovery by holding Britain to her huge debt and forcing her, in turn, to press other nations labouring under the war's terrible burdens. Similar examples are legion. They are found in every country. The voter, seeing usually only his own selfish interest, sways the politician and the politician, fearing for his seat, follows dictates which have untold consequences. With every nation being ruled largely this same way you have modern diplomacy—slow, unwieldy, futile. But the voter, with his quite-human impulses, is not wholly to blame. Politicians intrigue among themselves and play with a nation's fate, a world's destiny, for their own selfish ends. Study Cabinet history during the past twenty years and you will speedily learn that. The specific case which has prompted these remarks is mentioned among to-day's later cables. President Harding is found defending America's decision to participate in the Court of International Justice. Any detached observer would think this action, eminently sensible, required little defence. But then he would forget politics. Anxious to discredit Mr. Harding's prospects in the coming election, political opponents have been quick to insinuate that the decision means entry into the League, the unloved League which, as a political issue, has already cost one able President his seat. But the League apart, responsible American journals state that the Senate leaders opposing America's entry into the World Court are all nursing presidential ambitions of their own. And they realise that should he achieve success with this issue, Mr. Harding would materially enhance his prospects for re-nomination and re-election. Thus, once more, are the great causes of humanity made the playthings of scheming politicians.

FOR FATHERS AND MOTHERS, DAUGHTERS AND SONS

Pinkettes are the ideal bowel and liver regulators. They so gently yet so effectively dispel constipation, biliousness, sick headaches, liver troubles, clear the skin of pimples and blotches, relieve flatulence and purify the blood. LOCAL AND GENERAL.

Four cases of small-pox and one of cerebro-spinal fever were notified yesterday. All the patients were Chinese.

Lt. H. J. Mortimer of the Hongkong and Singapore Bn. R.G.A. has been granted leave from 26th October on private affairs.

Command orders state that the official rate of the dollar for all payments fixed in sterling, which have to be made in Hongkong and on the China Station during the month of May, will be 2s. 3d.

The Cheung Chau Government school is to hold its first annual sports meeting on the Football Ground at Cheung Chau next Saturday at 12.30 p.m. Mrs. Alabaster will present the prizes at 4.30.

First-class caterers are required for service on the local trains of the Kowloon-Canton Railway (British Section) and for the refreshment rooms at Kowloon. Details will be found in the advertisement columns.

Much regret is felt by lawyers practising in the Mixed Court, Shanghai, at the retirement from the bench on the 18th inst. of Mr. A. D. Blackburn, Senior British Assessor, who is shortly going on furlough prior to promotion to a Consular post in the interior. As British Assessor, the retiring Assessor has been made the recipient of a number of tokens of regard by the Court staff and others.

For stealing an overcoat belonging to Mr. Joseph and a felt hat the property of Mr. M. Ellis, who reside at a new house in Caine Road, a Chinese was sentenced to three months' hard labour by Mr. J. R. Wood at the Magistracy this morning. According to Sub-Inspector R. Lanigan of No. 7 Station, defendant is believed to have climbed up a bamboo pole to the verandah from which he entered the house.

Regarding the matter of additional accommodation at the Children's Playground at Kowloon, to which reference was made in the summary of recent activities of the Kowloon Residents' Association published yesterday, Mr. T. A. Martin, the hon. secretary, states that the Government has now intimated its intention to erect a temporary matshed in order to afford the children additional shade during the summer months.

The Sanitary Board met yesterday afternoon when letters were received from the Colonial Secretary, notifying the appointment of Lieut.-Col. F. G. Fitzgerald, D.S.O., R.A.M.C., to a place on the Board and the election of Mr. C. G. Alabaster, K.C., C.B.E. On the proposition of Mr. G. R. Sayer, the President, Dr. Koch and Mr. S. W. Tso were selected to consider and report upon the Sanitary Department's proposals regarding the Estimates.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL.

Professor Charles A. Beard, an American authority on civic problems, was an interested spectator at the Shanghai Mixed Court last week.

ELSEWHERE.

(TOM WRIGHT STUFF.)

When I was a boy I could not understand why Eugene Sue made his wandering Jew unhappy. It seemed to me a fine life, and rather an advantage than otherwise that he need not fear death in some foreign hospital. He got lots of scenery, and wasn't bothered with passports. Now that age is putting its chop on me, I begin to savvy. Looking back I seem to discover that I have rarely got the full savour of any place I have been in, because I have always in every place had a part of my mind scouting ahead to that ungeographical locality that bears the name of Elsewhere. I am always going there, and never arriving. Did I stop to taste the famous ale in the Black Horse at Steyning in Sussex, or walk over Lavant near Goodwood from Chichester to the Horse and Groom in Singleton, was my mind on Midhurst to which I should in a few hours come? No, it was in Africa, thinking that though the roads might be worse in Rhodesia, the shooting would be better. In the Spread Eagle at Midhurst, an old Carolean inn you ought to visit some day, an inn which I, now in mid-Pacific, am thinking of as Elsewhere and to be aimed for again or ever many moons have waned, I would fall to thinking of Australia, and how pleasant it must be to be a sunowner. When anon I was a sunowner, humping my swag in my "bluey" like the best of them, I spent long moments thinking about the isles of the Pacific, and the taste of Polynesian got mixed, I remember, with the flavours of Hongkong, not because Hongkong was Hongkong (as I thought at the time) but because it was Elsewhere. So here I lately began to think of Paris, but the recent political eccentricities of the French having put both Paris and Tahiti out of the Elsewhere likelihoods, I am thinking of Canada. I met a Canadian on a seat in a local park and talked with him long about his country. As is the way of Canadians, he praised it. I told him about the inns at Home, and particularly that tale of the rustic who asked the landlord of a Sussex inn what the "stop press" bare space in the paper from Lunnun was for. "Tir for in case some 'portant news come late," I be told, "said mine host of the inn, looking benignantly upon his flock of faithfuls. "Nay," said Jarge, "I dunt believe that's the reason." "Well then, Jarge," said Boniface, winking at the others, "what do you suppose it be for?" "O! do think it be left bare for their pore souls as haven't been larned for to read," said Jarge.

When I overheard little things like that, the burden of Elsewhere is not so heavy upon me. My Canadian told me, sitting on this seat in a Honolulu park—a story of a professor of thought-reading who conducted a class in that "science." One of his most promising pupils was a young lady in whom as was not unnatural, a young gentleman took a certain interest. She persuaded the young man to join the class, and sat beside him at the seances. One afternoon, without a word spoken, she turned on the young man and violently boxed his ears.

Naturally, I went again to meet that Canadian, but found another man occupying the seat. He was a little plump man with blue eyes and a happy expression. I asked him if he minded sharing the seat, and his reply showed me that he was a Londoner. We talked, and I learned that he originated in East Ham. Some man had heartlessly advised him that this was a good place to come to look for work. He operates lifts, acts as janitor, and so on. He had not found a job, and was reconciled to going back to Vancouver. He "aired" me when speaking. There are three ways of saying "sir." There is Dr. Johnson's way, which is rhetorical merely, and for emphasis. There is the southern American way, which is a cliché, and carries no respect; and there is the English way, which does. My happy little man who had failed to find a job had been an atheist since 17, and quoted Bradlaugh, Ingessall, Shelley, and others with a remarkable fluency. He called my attention to the beautiful colours of the foliage about us, and the wonderful light effects. One of his remarks was (and I loved him for it):

"Why should I respect Mrs. Grundy? I am not related to her. She is not a member of our royal family. I believe in adaptation. Same as Darwin talks about. Like man Darwin. In a climate like this I don't eat three meat meals a day, for instance. Don't need 'em. Mrs. Grundy makes men eat what isn't good for them in places like this. I defeat her. Take socks; for example. What do we wear socks for? To keep our feet warm. But in this climate we cannot but have warm feet."

Brava little man! I know that this adaptation was somewhat encouraged by dearth of cash. I have been there myself. I said that I regarded the wearing of socks. I did not think the object was to have

OPIUM SEIZURE.

"CHINESE MEDICINE" FOR SHANGHAI.

Sixteen hundred pounds of raw opium, contained in nine large cases, intended for export to Shanghai, were seized by Detective Sergeant O'Connor and a number of police on board the China Merchants' Steam Navigation Company's steamer "Tai Shun" lying alongside the company's wharf at West Point, yesterday morning.

The cases were placed in the hold of the ship bearing marks "Chinese medicine." The description of the contents according to the manifest was also Chinese medicine and a Chinese firm in Hillier Street was supposed to be the exporters. Inquiries revealed that the address and shipper's name were fictitious.

STUDENT ARRESTED.

After the seizure was effected a number of Revenue Officers waited at the China Merchant offices as freight had not been paid on the nine cases. A Chinese student turned up and he was arrested, giving his name as Mak Chi-wing, with an address at the Yan Wo boarding-house, Connaught Road Central. At the Imports & Exports office he said that he had been asked by a friend who he met in the street to pay the freight. He was accordingly charged with exporting or attempting to export and alternatively, with unlawful possession of 1,600 pounds of raw opium valued at $60,000. Bail was granted in the sum of $5,000 which was quickly forthcoming and the student was released.

This morning Mr. H. A. Taylor, assistant superintendent and monopoly analyst of the Imports and Exports Department appeared before Mr. J. R. Wood to prosecute but the student had "jumped bail." The Magistrate asked what Mr. Taylor wished to be done and Mr. Taylor said that the amount of bail had been fixed after consultation with Mr. Lloyd, the superintendent. He, therefore, asked for the bail to be reinstated.

His Worship made the order as requested.

SOUTH CHINA ATHLETES.

SATURDAY'S FAREWELL MATCH.

In spite of the numerous institutions which have sprung up in recent years in this Colony, the constant calls in respect of them made on the purses of the community, the support accorded to the South China Athletic Association is unceasing. In fact, it has become more enthusiastic as is seen from the results of the annual membership campaign just ended.

According to Mr. C. F. Yuen, acting honorary secretary to the association, they show a total number of 1236 members, and an amount of $11,602.50 which are slightly over and above last year's figures. The above sum includes a second donation of $2,000 from Mr. H. M. H. Nemazee and $100 from The Asiatic Petroleum Co. (S.C.) Ltd. This is no doubt due to the efforts made by the majority of its members and the awakening of the Chinese general public to the importance of physical education towards which the South China Athletic Association has done a great deal.

Before the departure of its athletes consisting of footballers, baseballers, etc., for Japan to take part in the approaching Far Eastern Olympic Games, there will be a farewell match between the teams of this association and of the Hongkong Football Club (not Kowloon as wrongly given on the admission tickets) on Saturday, the 28th instant at 5 p.m., on the Club Ground. It will be remembered that the South China Team have been holding the Far Eastern Olympic Championship for four successive terms, and it is hoped that they will retain it in the next meet. A good game is expected on Saturday.

warm feet. It was more to keep them from chafing.

He was that rare thing, a generous, controversialist. He said promptly, "Now I think of it, you are probably right there, sir. As a matter of fact, there is some skin off some of my toes now."

Not to be out-done in generosity, I said I had read that in the Foreign Legion of the French Army socks were not issued, and not worn, even on long marches, so that perhaps it was possible to learn to do without them. Personally, if it were only Mrs. Grundy who was concerned, I would not wear them, as now that I had no female to darn for me they were my chief problem. I wore them until they were disfigured with dirt and then bought new ones. "I had tried to go without, but my feet got sore."

It was a bond of sympathy. We sat talking all that afternoon, and we have arranged to walk to the Park together to-morrow afternoon. I shall wear socks. But then, I shall be moving in the direction of Elsewhere, so that I shall be happy, even if his talk did not make me so.

HOUSING PROBLEM.

SUGGESTIONS BY CHINESE CHAMBERS.

GOVERNMENT AID URGED.

The sub-committee appointed by the Chinese Chamber of Commerce to investigate the housing problem has now submitted its report to the Hon. Mr. H. E. Pollock, Chairman of the Housing Commission. It was a sub-committee of eight and included the Chairman and Vice-Chairman of the Building Contractors' Association.

The points submitted to the Housing Commission were:

1. (1) The standardization (with the object of reducing the cost of buildings) of

(a) designs for houses.

(b) fixtures and fittings for houses.

(2) The reduction of the cost of building materials.

(3) The use of cheaper or more suitable kinds of building materials.

(4) The greater employment of labour-saving machines or devices.

(5) Improved methods for the transportation of building materials.

(6) Procuring an increased supply of skilled labourers.

(7) Reducing the number of middlemen.

(8) Other methods for reducing the cost of house construction.

2. Measures which should be taken by the Government for promoting any of the above objects.

3. Measures which should be taken by the Government:

(1) To increase the quantity of housing accommodation; and in particular

(2) To facilitate the building of more houses for occupation by

(i) Persons of moderate means.

(ii) The working classes.

RECOMMENDATIONS MADE.

The following is the report of the Chamber's committee:

(1), (2) and (3): We suggest that the Government be asked to modify the existing regulations relating to designs and not to be too strict and stringent on the use of building materials. If the materials used are of a strong and lasting nature they should be passed.

It will be necessary for the Building Authorities to suggest a model design of some sort and invite the public to offer its opinion on same.

(4): The Government should allot to building contractors at the lowest possible price one or two pieces of land whereto to erect large workshops for keeping labour saving machines.

(5): The Government should be approached to erect one or two piers at convenient centres or build several large lighters solely for the purpose of allowing builders to transport materials. This will reduce transportation expenses, because there is no spare ground where building materials could be placed, and in case materials transported from the interior of China arrived here and were unable to unload in time, they must be kept in the junks and incur very heavy expenses.

NO SHORTAGE OF SKILLED LABOUR.

(6): There is no scarcity of skilled labourers, and procurement of more such is not difficult, but the labourers in the interior of China would always hesitate coming to Hongkong considering the high rent and the high cost of living here, and therefore unless an increase of wages is obtained, there would be no inducement for them to come. We would ask the Government to grant builders permission to erect temporary matcheds on or near the spot where houses are being built and allow a great majority of the workmen to dwell there, thus avoiding having to pay rent and time to and fro. It will then become easier to obtain cheap and skilled labour.

(7): The service of a middleman is almost indispensable. In the case of direct employment, the workmen always insist upon being paid by the day irrespective of the amount of work done, and what can ordinarily be accomplished in one day will take them two or three days to do. On the contrary if the work is done through a middleman, what generally takes two days to complete may be finished in one day. Nowadays the big docking companies, in the Colony, mostly adopt this method of getting work done through middlemen, which proves the advisability and benefit so to do.

(8): Brick, tile and lime are the principal materials for building and the Government should think of some means of encouraging these industries, such as a free gift of land to carry on the work. Moreover cement is also a great requisite for building, the use of which has grown much more popular now than was before. As there is only the Green Island Cement Company in the Colony, the demand is often greater than the supply, causing the natural result of a rapid advance in price. The Government

CORRESPONDENCE.

IRISH LOYALISTS' NEEDS.

[To the Editor of the "China Mail."]

Sir,—I desire to enlist the sympathy of your readers for the Loyalists of Southern Ireland, who have endured many grievous wrongs and are now in dire distress and affliction owing to the recent political events in that country. These people, who have ever been law-abiding and inoffensive citizens, have suffered intolerable things during the last four years. They have seen parents, children and friends murdered, their womenfolk foully misused, their property looted and their homes destroyed. Some, still clinging to the wrecks of what they once possessed, are living a life of strain and persecution in Ireland; thousands have been compelled to leave the land they loved, and are penniless refugees in Great Britain.

This Association has done and is doing all in its power to help them, irrespective of creed, by grants of money to enable them to carry on until they can find occupation; by helping them to find employment, and by assisting them to secure homes. Clothing has been provided for several hundreds, among them, persons who have never before lacked the means to clothe themselves. But all that the Association has been able to do is small compared with the mass of misery that presents itself for relief.

People once affluent are reduced to poverty; those less prosperous are destitute. Young men and women have had to leave schools and universities when on the threshold of a promising future—all are confronted with the task of starting afresh in life at a time of commercial and industrial depression and of financial stress.

In these circumstances the Association has to look far afield for support, and they feel they can appeal to no more sympathetic people than their fellow Dominion compatriots. It may be that some among your readers may reflect that distress and its relief know nothing of distance and are bounded only by the limits of humanity.—I am, etc.,

J. M. RAYMOND,

Hon. Director.

Southern Irish Loyalists Relief Association,

SAILINGS CANCELLED.

It is announced at the offices of the China Mail Steamship Company that all sailings of the company's steamers have been temporarily cancelled.

should therefore encourage the formation of another cement company.

GOVERNMENT AID URGED.

The report concludes: "Taking the average Chinese tenement house as a basis, the present cost of building one would be something between $4,000 to $5,000. Plus the cost of land the figure would amount to somewhere between $8,000 to $9,000. Even assuming that all the suggestions for minimising expenses as mentioned above were practicable, we can at the best obtain a reduction of $700 or $800 only, which cannot possibly reduce the rental by more than 10 per cent. and this is no great help. This Chamber is strongly of the opinion that the Government should be urged to build two or three hundred houses in each of the following districts, viz. Causeway Bay, Kennedy Town, Yau-mat, and Mongkoktsui, etc. and also extend the tram lines so as to make them easily accessible. The Government could build these houses at a cost of $4,000 or $5,000 each and reckoning on a five or six per cent. return, each house could be let at $20 to $30 a month. Thus the middle class and the working class inhabitants in the Colony will be rescued from the hardship of paying high and excessive rent and simultaneously the rent in the whole Colony will be restored to its normal condition. My Committee cannot too strongly emphasize the fact that this would be the only solution of the problem and beg that their views be represented to the Government."

Attached to the report are sketches of two types of buildings, one of them suitable for persons of moderate means and the other for the working class, the construction costs of which are estimated at $7,500 and $2,200 respectively.

CANTON CONFLICT.

SUN AND EX-PREMIER.

WU PEI-FU'S TROOPS RETREATING

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Canton, April 25.
It is reported that Dr. C. H. Wang, the ex-Premier, was favourably received by Dr. Sun Yat-sen. Dr. Sun is said to have pointed out to Dr. Wang, that being a Cantonese, his (Dr. Wang's) public services would reap more fruits if put to use in Kwangtung where the disturbed conditions were acute and that he would be welcomed in his native province. The ex-Premier is said to have replied that as he had accepted an international judicial appointment at the Hague, he had no option but to decline.

Authoritative advice has been received that the Northern troops despatched by Marshal Wu Pei-fu to aid Shun Kung-yang's defeated Kwangsi-ites, have come to the conclusion that the situation is too far gone to retrieve and are moving towards the Kiangsi-Hunan border without fighting.

SUN'S MONEY TROUBLES.

CANTON, April 24.
No further reports of fighting on any scale have been received and it seems as if the Kwangsi element has been defeated all along the line. If Shun's men, with assistance from Wu Pei-fu, were capable of offering resistance they would have done so by now. The latest advice is to the effect that Shun is moving towards Nam Hung, the town on the important caravan route to the north.

In spite of the prestige created by the victories, Sun's adherents are hard pressed for money. Several schemes are in the air to raise urgent funds but the people do not seem keen to comply with requests. One vernacular paper has already reported that the salt merchants have received instructions to pay some of the monopoly revenues in advance. To-day another mentions that the Finance Department has written to a large number of firms and shops requesting loans of $1,000 from each. A rumour has also been freely circulated to effect that the authorities will impose a tax of one month's rent on all premises. The Yunnan troops are gradually taking over that part of the Yueh-Han Railway vacated by the Kwangsi-ites but there seems little possibility of their turning in the revenues as they will require the receipts, which the service is resuming, for their own upkeep.

Yang Hsi-nan convened a meeting of the leaders of the various denominations supporting Sun at which it was agreed that the campaign against the Kwangsi-ites should be pursued till the latter were driven out of Kwangtung, when Yang Tak, Shiu Kwan and Nam Hung would be specially garrisoned to prepare for any further hostilities with the Northerners.

AGRICULTURAL STATION ATTACK.

A story which has been related and credited in Canton, regarding the Kwangsi attack on the Agricultural Experimental Station, at that time the headquarters of Yang Hsi-nan, commander-in-chief of the Yunnanese troops in Kwangtung, goes to the effect that a picked detachment of Kwangsi-ites led by Li Yik-piu in person was detailed to attack a certain building in which Yang was supposed to have been staying. Yang is said to have received warning in the nick of time and to have escaped through the loyalty of some of his bodyguards.

About twelve of them, with their chief, are said to have seized a number of mausers and rushed through a side door, firing rapidly at the Kwangsi-ites. More than half of the guards are reported to have been killed but Yang escaped to Canton. Some of the Kwangsi-ites were shot down, this probably starting the rumour circulated at the beginning of the campaign, that Li Yik-piu had either been killed or wounded.

CRIMINAL SESSIONS.

ARMS ON A JUNK.

The trial of five Chinese, charged with unlawful possession of arms aboard a junk, was continued at the Criminal Sessions to-day before the Puisne Judge (Mr. Justice Gompertz) and a jury.

Yesterday afternoon Mr. F. C. Jenkin opened the case for the defence. Counsel described the case as an unusual one and asked the jury not to pay too much attention to the evidence of Sergt. Snare, who, he asserted, had deliberately tried to make a better case out of what was already a good one.

In outlining the case, Mr. Jenkin said that between 5 and 5.30 a.m. a man, accompanied by two coolies, came aboard and said he wanted three bags taken to a junk in the harbour. The bags were placed in the hold and the man who had brought them left the junk saying he would return later. The junk waited until 10 a.m., when a man came to engage it to remove 31 bags of feathers from the s.s. "Taiwah Maru." Very shortly after, the police boarded the boat.

The boat-woman stated that she thought the bags contained axes and axehandles. She informed the Police Sergeant that she was taking the bags to the Water Police Station, her reason being that her mother had done so on a former occasion.

THIS MORNING'S EVIDENCE.

When the case was resumed this morning, the Court was crowded with boat-people who took a great interest in the proceedings. Mr. Jenkin called the second prisoner (a woman) who stated the lower hold was used as a kitchen. There would not be room in it for the two sacks in addition to the stoves and pans.

In reply to the prosecution, witness said if the furniture was removed, it would be possible to store the sacks. "When we had fetched the feathers from the Japanese ship, we should have stored the feathers in the lower hold. I have no camphor-wood box on my junk. All my boxes are kept in the stern hold."

The witness again asserted that it was her intention to take the two sacks of arms to the Water Police. "I did not know that the sacks contained arms. I put them in the hold until the owner came to claim them." The witness mentioned another bag, the contents of which eventually proved to be revolvers. The witness said she had been promised $2.00 for removing the sacks, but the money had not yet been paid. She denied that any bag was open when the police found it. At the time the police arrived prisoner No. 4 was feeding off the launch from the junk.

The third accused (also a woman) said she was making some tea, when the sacks were brought on board. She added that the previous witness had lifted up the boards and showed the bags to the police. She denied having thrown any sacks overboard, as alleged by the police-sergeant. One of the children, witness said, had accidentally knocked a tin of tea overboard.

In cross-examination, she stated that there were two boat-hooks on board the junk. She denied that she had lifted a board, as stated by the engineer on the police launch.

By the Court:—The children on board are mine. The other accused are no relations of mine.

Chow Yao-po was called next for the defence. He is employed in a firm in Wenlock Street. His firm was expecting a cargo of feathers and the cargo runner was sent to make arrangements for the cargo being brought ashore.

The runner gave evidence as to how hardware is carried on junks. He was detained at the Water Police Station and later was sent for to the Central Station. This was a week after his arrest. He engaged the junk of accused No. 1 to go and fetch the feathers. He had engaged the same junk on three previous occasions last year. The case is proceeding.

MURDER TRIAL.

ACCUSED MAN'S DENIAL.

Before His Honour, the Chief Justice (Sir William J. J. Davies), the murder trial, in which Wu Kwong-chow is charged, was continued this morning. The case had May 1 to their passage rates from Hongkong, Manila and Shanghai to Marseilles will be reduced as follows:

In a statement from the dock, accused acknowledged that he had gone to the house on the day of the murder with the intention of assisting in a robbery. He denied having fired any shots with a revolver, stating that he was not present in the house when any shots were fired.

The case against Lam Chun, who is charged with having aided Kwong-chow in the robbery and murder, will be heard to-morrow morning.

FOUND DROWNED.

CANADIAN SEAMAN'S DEATH.

An inquest was held by Mr. A. Covey, H.M. Acting Coroner, at the Shanghai Mortuary last week, on the body of a man believed to be William Payne, a member of the crew of the str. "Canadian Inventor," who was last seen on his ship on January 18 last. A verdict of found drowned was returned.

Inspector Mellows, of the River police, stated that on January 22 a man was reported missing from the "Canadian Inventor." His name was given as William Payne, who was last seen on board, on the 18th of that month. He was described as having one leg shorter than the other, dressed at the time in engine room overalls. On Wednesday morning a constable in the River Police saw the body at Holt's Wharf. Thinking it to be that of a Chinese, the body was handed over to the Chinese authorities.

They, however, discovered a document on deceased which proved to be the discharge of a man called Payne from the str. "Monteagle," dated November 1, 1922. The paper showed that he was signed on September 21, 1922, at Victoria, B. C. The year of birth was stated to be 1882. There were no marks of violence.

The Coroner said it was impossible to come to the decision as to how the deceased had met his death, so the verdict, as stated, would be found drowned.

QUEEREST FIGHT.

WHY SIKI AND MCTIGUE DEFIED REBELS.

Describing his visit to Dublin to see the Siki-McTigue fight there, Mr. B. Bennis in the Daily Telegraph wrote:—
I am back but a few hours ago from Dublin, poor, neurotic, cruelly-changed Dublin—not dear, dreamy, dirty Dublin I once knew and loved, but a city of whispers, a city all mistrust, an armed Dublin. As I write I feel as a man who has emerged from a nightmare of ugliness; I have stalked abroad with violence and death at my elbow; and I shiver and shudder.
My mission to Dublin was to see the fight between Battling Siki and Mike McTigue. No such contest, not in all the years I have been associated with sport, has given off such an atmosphere; the like of it can never be again, none will ever be pitched on such a cockpit of trouble and strife and irresponsibility.
We said of Reno when Johnson and Jenni Jeffries fought, that it was extravagantly wild, and men there flitted with and laughed at death, but as I visualise Reno it was a model of orderliness, tractable and tame by comparison with Dublin; for at Reno men deposited their six-shooters before they took up a position at the ring-side.
ASKING FOR TROUBLE.
To me Dublin, on Saturday night, and for days before, was as a city where dire trouble was openly, blatantly courted; guns were terrible in their plenitude. And yet, amazing thing, it was not only possible to hold the fight, but some 2,000 people, among whom were many richly gowned women, went to it; an incredible circumstance.
For on Friday morning there came a message to the promoters from the General Headquarters of the irregulars forbidding the contest to take place; it was decreed that Ireland, by way of celebrating St. Patrick's Day, should mourn for the rebels who had been shot; but the promoters refused to creep into their holes.
"This fight will take place though the heavens should fall!" that was their slogan; and the Government, who are struggling for the establishment of law and order, said in effect: "There must be no backing out now. Siki and McTigue have got to go into the ring, else we make an unholy confession of weakness."
I left my hotel in company with Georges Carpentier, Francois Desamps, the inimitable Tom Webster, and others of my friends, a few minutes before seven o'clock on Saturday night. We pulled our car up to within easy distance of the Scala Theatre; further progress was impossible, for we ran up against a crowd many thousands strong, fringed by an army of police—great, big fellows, giants every one of them.
We had literally to fight our way through a mob that yelled and roared their welcome to the Frenchman, who suffered to be hit and cuffed and kissed by the exuberant Irish folk. And then myself and those of our party were lifted bodily over barriers which had been placed across Princes-street. My hat was flattened, my body bruised, not by any viciousness of the people.
ONLY A LITTLE BOMB.
They were delightfully good-tempered souls, but I was profoundly grateful when I reached the door of the theatre. Here I was greeted by a laughing man in civilian clothes, who, with the help of others, searched me for firearms, afterwards to be allowed to proceed to my seat—Boxing was already in progress.
I had scarcely taken up my position when there was a crash and a bang without. "That's a bomb," was whispered; "but only a little one," my next-door neighbour assured me. But it was poor consolation to hear the master of ceremonies announce that, in obedience to a military order no person would be allowed to leave the building until 11.30, for this meant that at a modest estimate I would be held captive for two hours after the big fight was over.
The wildest rumours floated around, and I confess that I edged and cowered up many strange and weird fancies when I was asked to believe in the possibility—by no means a remote one—of the theatre being mined.

KISSED LODGER.

AMOROUS GLASGOW
LANDLORD.

A sequel to the amorous conduct of Patrick Morris, who advertised furnished rooms to let at his house at 77 West Street, Tradeston, was related at Glasgow Divisional Court. He was charged with having assaulted a woman by placing his arms round her neck, pulling her towards him, and kissing her. Complaining, in answer to the advertisement, had called at accused's house, and while he was showing her the apartments he committed the assault. He explained, however, that when he kissed her it was by accident—while he was opening the door to let her out.
The Magistrate did not think much of this excuse, and fined accused £3. 3s.

AN ALTERED LINE.

A London schoolmistress gives this curious example of childish misconception. The class had been accustomed to sing each afternoon a short hymn commencing with the line—
"Weak and sinful though we be,"
and on a new teacher investigating their rather indefinite articulation it was found that nearly half the class had been rendering the line—
"We can sing full though we be."
There is a valuable warning here to all who instruct the very young, whether in day school or Sunday school—The Sunday at Home.

But it is surprising what a little philosophy can do, and I found it possible to settle down in tolerable comfort to follow the fight between McTigue and Siki.
And when it was over there came the long wait before I was permitted to leave. I was much relieved when I was informed that I might take myself home, but I was wholly unprepared for what was to happen.
In the street I had my second wrestle to warm myself through a vast crowd, and I had but just crossed over Sackville-street when many guns spat and barked. There was a regular stampede, and before I had time to appreciate it I was hurled through the swinging doors of a tea shop and fell all of a heap on the floor, with Tom Webster on the top of me and Major Arnold Wilson taking cover in a convenient corner.
Lights were put out; women and girls began to cry. But we were not kept captive for more than a few minutes, and away we hurried to our hotel.
Near to the Bank of Ireland a shot rang out and there jumped in front of me a soldier, rifle in hand, capless, who bade me halt. "And where's the shooting come from," he inquired. One of my companions pointed to the opposite side of the road, and away he ran. And on the pavement was a youngster who had been brought down with a bullet in his leg.
I had got within striking distance of my quarters when I was pulled up with a jerk, and the while I looked down a rifle I was searched. I counted myself supremely fortunate when I eventually got indoors.
At a time like this it was madness to have such a thing as a boxing match in Dublin; it was all so very much like "tread on the tail of my coat if you dare and you will know that you have been in a shindy." Queer celebration of St. Patrick's Day, to be sure, and yet I am pleased that there was this fight for it gave me an opportunity, which I would not otherwise have had, of seeing and realising for myself what a pass Ireland has reached.
You are searched as you leave the boat! I went to Baldoyle races and was turned out of my motor-car and had my pockets felt by a couple of young soldiers; I had been in the city but a few minutes when I was enjoined not to trust my best friend on the principle that you never know who's who. Unthinkable Dublin!

RUSSELL CASE.

JURY'S VERDICT FOR HUSBAND.

CO-RESPONDENT CLEARED.

After ten days' hearing of his petition, the Hon. John Hugo Russell (son and heir of Lord Amthill) was on March 16 granted a decree nisi with costs. He made two charges against his wife, Mrs. Christabel Russell (formerly Hart)—adultery with a man unknown and adultery with the named co-respondent, Mr. Edgar Jacquard Mayer. The jury found the first charge proved, but not the second. At the outset of the day's hearing Mr. Justice Hill, continuing his summing up, asked: Was Mr. Russell in the box trying to tell the jury the truth? Of course, it might be that after the stress of this long controversy of two years Mr. Russell might have become convinced that something happened which never happened or that something did not happen which actually did. An important witness, the judge continued, was Mrs. Shortan, a friend of Mrs. Russell. She said Mrs. Russell told her after the week-end at Oakley in December, 1920, that nothing had happened between her and her husband. If the jury accepted the statement they must also consider whether the conversation really applied to that particular week-end or to another. Mrs. Shortan was not called at the last trial. She sat in court all the while, but said it was not until afterwards that she made any statement about this week-end, as she did not until then realise the importance of the incident. If they were satisfied that something happened on the particular date referred to it ended the matter.
As to the alleged adultery with the co-respondent Mr. Mayer at his flat in Half Moon-street, most of the evidence rested with the servants. The question was whether at this distance of time the servants could really identify any of the women visitors mentioned. Were they mistaken with regard to Mrs. Russell, who denied their evidence? TWO QUESTIONS.
Apart from identification, however, the jury would also have to be satisfied that these two people had committed adultery. There was no evidence of such behaviour between Mrs. Russell and Mr. Mayer apart from the evidence about the flat. At the same time it had to be borne in mind that although Mrs. Russell was very open about her indiscretions she said nothing about this.
The questions left to the jury were:—
And Mrs. Russell committed adultery with a man unknown whereby she became mother of the child born in October, 1921?
Had she committed adultery with the co-respondent, Mr. Mayer?
His Lordship added he was sure the jury would not shrink from determining the questions at issue, and he left the matter to them with confidence.
After an hour and three-quarters absence his Lordship said he understood the jury would require substantial time, and he proposed to adjourn until two o'clock. Meanwhile would the parties agree to the jury having sandwiches and coffee or something like that, the cost to be costs in the cause? (Laughter.) "We do not want to starve them," said his Lordship, amid further laughter.
The Hon. Victor Russell, for Mr. Russell, said there was no objection to the course suggested.
JURY'S ANSWERS.
When the jury, after considering their verdict for exactly four hours, filed back into the box, the judge took his seat upon the bench, and then, leaning across his desk towards the jury, the Associate, in conversational tones, asked: Are you agreed upon your verdict?
The Foreman of the Jury: We are.
Do you find that the respondent, Christabel Hulme Russell, committed adultery with a man unknown?—Yes.
Do you find that the respondent, Christabel, Hulme Russell, committed adultery with the co-respondent, Edgar Jacquard Mayer?—No.
Do you find that the co-respondent committed adultery with her?—No.
Mr. Bush Jones (for Mr. Mayer) asked that the co-respondent be dismissed from the case with costs.
The Judge: Yes.
Sir Edward Marshall Hall, K.C. (for Mr. Russell): On that verdict I ask for a decree nisi.
The Judge: Yes.
Mr. Coles-Reedy (for Mrs. Russell): I ask for an order for the wife's usual costs.
The Judge: I will make the usual order.
Turning to the jury, on which there were two women, his Lordship thanked them for their very patient hearing and exempted them from service in the Divorce Division for five years.
£14,000 COSTS.
The costs of the Russell divorce case are estimated to exceed £14,000.

INTO THE EAST.

TRAVELLER'S TABLES OF
THE ORIENT.

Mr. Richard Curle's travel notes on Ceylon, Burma, and Malaya—"Into the East"—make a book of unusual quality in which the author has succeeded, amid the blare of external life, in catching and also enabling his readers to hear "the walsper of innumerable hills passing on one to another the restless murmur of men's hearts."
By avoiding statistics and tourist commonplace Mr. Curle has kept a free mind in the riotous pageantry of the tropical scene for a critical valuation of places, the future of countries, and the inner meaning of the East for the West.
It is this questioning mood, Mr. Joseph Conrad surmises—in a delightful preface appraising travellers' tales through the centuries—which makes Mr. Curle's writing "so responsive to the inner promptings, suggested by travel, which informs the felicitous rendering of his visual impressions."

SOMBERE INDIANS.
Of cosmopolitan Rangoon, "neither Burma nor the East," Mr. Curle says:—
I have never known a town so vivid at once of modernity and age, or above whose activity, of 3,000,000 people, there hovered so quietly the breath of stagnation.
Mandalay is "old Burma dying by inches, and vilely set upon by the fungus of European civilisation."
The Indian types, he finds, unlike the gay, colour-lost Burmese.
Wear a sombre look, as though they were the children of a land haunted by devils and dark dreams, and they walk with stealthy litheness.

At Penang—the East freed from the dark sway of India—"he felt a 'lightheartedness as I landed which I had never felt in Burma."
With all its colour, there is something heavy about Burma, but Penang has the brilliance of the Southern Seas.
For "my last look at Malaya," by evening.
The whole harbour was magically, at a given signal, transfused in coral, and the sky between its coloured clouds shone green in the ravenous east. The solidity of the earth, between the flushed water and the melting sky, was terrific as graven metal.

EASTERN PSYCHOLOGY.
Singapore, to an even greater extent than Colombo or Hongkong, is the "focus-point of the East."
It's the kind of place where you may constantly see dubious-looking people getting hurriedly off ships and simply disappearing into thin air. What schemes must have been hatched in Singapore!
What does the East really want of us? Riddance apparently!
We talk to them of freedom, and they reply, "Well, give us freedom," but the only freedom they want is freedom from us.
The psychology of Asiatics may often approximate outwardly to our own, but there is something at the back which the arguments of democracy do not touch. Words do not have a universally equal significance. What the Oriental really wants is a return to some sinuous Eastern mode of life where the order of things is fixed within and chaotic without.

Eastern race-mentality, in this traveller's estimation, remains steadfast and inscrutable.
All you will ever notice is the sheath of its nerves, which contains an idea more powerful, more universal, than any other idea in the whole world. But if I could explain what that idea is I should have ceased to be a European.

THEY WOULD DO THE SAME.

A Devonshire parish lately possessed a clergyman who was not much appreciated.
A few Sundays ago he remarked to his church-warden—"You people don't seem to appreciate me. Do you know that on leaving my last sphere of work the people showed their appreciation so much that they gave me a silver salver?"
That is nothing," was the churchwarden's reply. "If they would only go away from this parish, we'd give thee a gold 'un."

The first trial, which lasted eight days, was stated by Lord Amthill to have cost him £10,000. In the present case the fees of counsel for all the parties are stated to amount to £26,000, and it is estimated that another £8,000 will be required to cover the solicitors' costs and other charges which will be allowed on taxation.
In addition to this, the solicitor and client costs, which are not taxed, can be put at several thousands of pounds.
There was intense eagerness to gain admission to the court during the last day of the hearing. Even barriers lined up in the queue. Sir Alfred Tobin, the Westminster County Court judge, appeared to have had some difficulty in getting in to hear the case, and was just saved from election later by a barrister's clerk, who explained to an attendant who he was.

VITAMINES IN BEER.

ARGUMENT U. S. BREWERS MISSED.

The "presence of vitamins in beer," says Mr. Henry C. Fuller in his interesting book "The Story of Drugs," printed in the United States is a "potent argument for the economic life of the nation."

Why the value of beer as a ready means for supplying these all-important nutritional substances was not urged upon our lawmakers (United States Legislatures) as a reason for not prohibiting its manufacture and sale is beyond comprehension. The brewers lost the chance of a life-time. They could have employed a vital argument to bolster up this one-sided fight.

A "yeast filtrate" (derived by the American chemist Seidel from brewer's yeast) is described as "exceedingly rich in vitamins."

If fifteen drops of yeast filtrate are given to completely paralysed pigeons (paralysed through a course of non-vitaminous food), a relief of the paralysis will occur within an hour, and to all outward appearances the pigeon will be restored to a normal condition within twelve hours.
"Soda and baking powders," Mr. Fuller states, "cannot replace yeast as leavening agents. They may act as occasional substitutes, but they kill the vitamins." He also touches on the source of another vitamin—the fat-soluble vitamin present in cod-liver oil—as an "interesting subject for speculation."

THE PLACID COD.
"It would appear," he says, "that vitamins are synthesised only in the economy of vegetable growths, and that their presence in animal products depends on the diet of the animal. In fact, it is a question of timely interest among scientists whether fact or merely fat-soluble vitamins are necessary in the diet."

But, coming back to the codfish, we must alter our ideas regarding the food of fish in general, and, instead of considering the cod as a ravenous consumer of the smaller fry of the ocean, place him in the status of a placid sea-grazer.

In a chapter about "dope," Mr. Fuller says that in the United States "investigation into the question of the future status of drug addiction indicates that the evil is on the decrease."

Out of a total of 321 municipalities it was reported by the police officials of 287 that the proclivities were declining, while in 34 cities an increase was noted. The increases were in the larger cities.

It is pointed out that the "evil associated with the use of narcotic drugs is the habit acquired thereby. But not all narcotic drugs are habit-forming."

Hyoscin or scopolamin, a powerful substance occurring in the leaves of henbane and the root of scopolia, possesses the characteristics of a narcotic. It is the drug employed to induce the "twilight sleep" that allays the suffering incident to childbirth, and is also one of the remedies depended upon by the practitioner in the systematic treatment of alcoholism and the morphin habit.

CHINA'S NEEDS.

BRITISH TEXTILE MACHINERY.

An understanding has been come to between Great Britain and China that the balance of the Boxer Indemnity which is still due to us shall be devoted to educational work, mainly among the Chinese younger generation. The balance amounts to 11,186,547, which is equivalent to about 400,000 a year for twenty years. The Textile Machinery Makers' Association, which has for some time been formulating plans for the establishment of a textile technical school in China, has decided to appeal for general support of the scheme, and to ask the Governments concerned for a share of the annual allocation to be made in connection with the indemnity. This scheme, while helping the Chinese themselves, should considerably assist British trade. The school would probably be placed in Shanghai, and the estimated cost of the land, building and equipment is 150,000. It is estimated that the annual cost of upkeep would be 17,000, and, as students' fees are not expected to bring in more than 2,000 a year, there would be an annual deficit of 15,000, to be met. The scheme would provide for the practical education of between 300 and 350 students in the use of British-made textile machinery and should attract orders to this country. Somewhat similar activity on the part of the United States has greatly increased the sale of American textile machinery in the Chinese market, while Germany is also entering the field.—Engineering.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Vasco L. dos Remedios and family will learn with regret the death of a member of the family, Miss Sara Augusta Remedios. The young woman had been ailing for some years, and for a long time had been confined to her room. She was 25 years old.

CHINA'S DEBTS.

GOVERNMENT IN DEEP WATER.

Peking, April 24. The Government's efforts to secure an advance of $12,000,000 from the Consortium have ended in failure.

The Government is now in more dire straits financially than ever before.

The Chinese bankers, who are hesitating to make petty loans to the Government, are awaiting the decisions of the bankers' conference at Hankow.

The Japanese telephone loan to China of Yen 16,000,000 plus back interest, all of which is due on April 24, and the Japanese telephone loan of Yen 20,000,000 plus interest, are due on April 30.

China has no money to pay these debts, and, therefore, the Japanese, according to their contracts, have the right to take over complete control of the telephone and telegraph systems.

In addition to the above, a further loan of $10,000,000, known as the telegraph extension loan, is falling due now.

It is understood that the Japanese do not intend to exercise their right to take over these systems at present, but it is obvious that the Government must take drastic measures to meet these and other debts.

Millions are needed for administrative purposes. For instance, nothing has yet been paid to the Legations and Consulates in Europe, in spite of their recent protest.—Courtesy Daily Bulletin.

COUNT MOLTKE.

DEATH RECALLS GREAT SCANDAL.

Count Cuno Moltke, whose death is announced, was one of the central figures of the great Court scandal which in 1907 shook German society to its foundations, and drove the ex-Kaiser to seek refuge for some weeks in England. Count Moltke was at that time aide to the Emperor and Military Governor of Berlin. The scandal was brought to light by a series of Zukunft articles, in which Maximilian Harden stated that the Kaiser was hedged in by a small circle of sycophants of abnormal temperaments and perverse proclivities, who, by ministering to his insatiable appetite for adulation, had got him completely into their power, and were thus exercising a very injurious influence on German policy. Among those mentioned by name were Prince Eulenburg, who had been Ambassador at Vienna, and Count Moltke. Dismissals from high offices and withdrawals of social favour were then the signal for a long series of sordid lawsuits and prosecutions which for the first time revealed to the world the pitiful and contemptible realities lying behind the Emperor's heroic poses.

It was impossible for the persons implicated to sit still under the charges made against them, and, with great circumspection, they put forward Count Moltke to fight their battle. He was, apparently, the least offensive of the whole gang, and had innocently allowed himself to be made the instrument of others' schemes and intrigues.

The Chief of the Police Department concerned with the affair has recently stated in a book of reminiscences that Count Moltke's peculiar idiosyncrasy never found expression in actions inconsistent with the law. Though a general and Governor, he hardly cared nothing for either military matters or politics. All his interests were in the spheres of art. It was, no doubt, for the reason that he could face legal cross-examination with a comparatively clear conscience that the men who had been using him to maintain their influence on the Kaiser pushed him into the foreground as their champion.

Count Moltke's first idea was to wipe his reputation clean by a duel, but his challenge was declined by Harden. There was, consequently, nothing for it but a libel action. Through one vicissitude or another the proceedings dragged on endlessly, till at last a sudden and unexpected development gave them a turn in a new direction. Two hushings who had acted as boatmen to Prince Eulenburg on a lake in Bavaria gave evidence in flat conflict with that of the Prince, and thus brought down on him a prosecution for perjury. No sooner however had his trial been begun than he either became ill or simulated sickness with such success as to deceive the doctors attached to the court. But the public was suspicious that the Kaiser's favourite was being let down easily, and raised so loud a clamour that it was only after the Prince had more than once been brought into court in his bed that the trial was indefinitely postponed.

Till his death, which took place since the war, the Prince lived quietly on the estate to the north of Berlin where he had so often entertained William II.

COSMETICS AND CANCER.

SURGEON ON SOAP AND POWDER DANGERS.

Speaking at the Institute of Hygiene, Sir George Lenthal Cheatle, the naval surgeon, deprecated the use of soap, face powders, colouring matter and creams, bath salts, and, in fact, everything that is scented, as conducive to cancer through irritation of the skin.

Powders and soaps are especially dangerous as being apt to make their way into the glands of the skin and then set up trouble which might ultimately become cancer. There was a great opportunity for an inventor who could discover some substitute for soap, for though personal cleanliness was of course essential the perpetual application of soap should be discouraged. The smoke, from cigarettes he also characterised as harmful to the skin, advising the use of long holders.

A NEW METHOD.

A guest at a country hotel gave instructions one night that he wished to be called early.

The next morning he was disturbed by a loud tattoo upon the door.

"Well?" he demanded sharply. "I've got a message for you, sir."

Yawning until he strained his face, the guest jumped out of bed and unlocked the door.

The page boy handed him an envelope and then went away quickly. The guest opened the envelope, and took out a slip of paper bearing the words, "It's time to get up."

THE INDIAN FRONTIER OUTRAGE.

PESHAWAR, April 23rd.
The release of Miss Ellis has not yet been effected, for though she has been rescued from the clutches of her captors she is still in the heart of the Turko country, and there is a possibility of their offering further opposition.

SOUNDS.

DO THEY INTEREST YOU?

I have always made a quaint, though not very profound, study of sounds, writes James Hilton in The Star. Some people insist a sound by calling it a noise, but this to my mind is more prejudice. You can say a certain sound is pleasing or unpleasant, just as you can say the sound of a picture or a novel, but to say, "Oh, it's just a noise!" is begging the question. Personally I like the majority of sounds. And if somebody asked me to walk a mile to hear a new sort of one, I would do so and take the risk of not liking it.

By sounds I mean very simply everything that sounds.

High in my list of sounds that are exquisitely beautiful I put the sound of a London tram (only a London tram) as you sit snugly in the corner of the rear alcove on the top deck and are carried swiftly into the fastnesses of some remote suburb.

The trolley-wheel purns along the overhead wire, and every time it crosses the thing-mie-jig that holds it to the wire that connects the standards (you know what I mean) it makes a beautiful little execrable sound that is for all the world like a kiss.

But I must tell the story of a wonderful sound I once heard. I was walking on the road from Twickenham to Hounslow.

ANOTHER WORLD SYMPHONY.

It was a dull, gloowering winter's afternoon, heavy with mist, and suddenly there came into the gloom of it a most curious distant murmur, something that reminded me vaguely of the surf breaking upon a sunlit beach, something that, as I walked on and as it grew less faint, seemed to pour floods of strange brilliance into the dreary world. Then all at once I turned a corner, and it was on me in a tide. It was like some wild, fierce symphony of another world, full of gorgeous, intricate confusion—a mighty, passionate riot, wherein a hundred melodies soothed in one stormy cauldron of discord. I listened for several moments, standing still in the roadway. The power of it seemed endless, uniform, infinite.

When I walked on and discovered what it was. It was Kneller Hall, and in every window of the huge building I could see the figure of an Army bandman, practising the difficult bit over and over again, no doubt, until he was perfect in them.

I had tea in a little cottage close by, and the woman there told me the noise was something awful during the afternoon practice hours—didn't I think so?

A Parent's Duty.

Your boy is always getting scratched or cut or bruised. Because these wounds are scratched all right in his skin they always will. Get a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and see that every injury is cared for immediately. You can get nothing better, and blood-poison is too dangerous a disease to risk.
